● SKIPPER'S MOTIVATION

The CIC Normandy Channel Race is our first double-handed ocean race on Class40 n°152. We have been training over the last few months in the West Indies and the Azores and our aim is to work together as well as possible, both in terms of strategy and technique, in order to have the best possible race. This race is mythical and the course is exceptional, with all the difficulties and complexities that can be encountered in an ocean race. It should also allow us to acquire the automatisms to be as efficient as possible. We will also have to master the different level passages and define the right strategy. We will try to do well among the Class40s of our generation. Finally, this race will reinforce our experience, which should be good for the rest of the season, with the Fastnet in July.
