● SKIPPER'S MOTIVATION

For me, the CIC Normandy Channel Race marks the first real confrontation of the year. The field is virtually complete and the level is once again incredible. I'm really looking forward to it. This is my 2nd participation in this demanding race, after a fine 5th place last year. This year I will be sailing with Pierre Le Roy, an accomplished navigator and meteorologist, with whom I form a complementary duo. Sailing with Pierre is a great learning opportunity, particularly in terms of weather and decision-making. The CIC Normandy Channel Race is a challenging, technical and strategic course: the ideal terrain for challenging yourself from the start of the season and getting your bearings offshore. Let's get offshore!
